

TUNNEL SECTION SUNK IN RIVER

Sinking of the Last Piece for the Subway Under the Harlem Successfully Accomplished by D. D. McBean.

LATEST METHOD OF TUNNEL CONSTRUCTION.

Twin Tube About Six Hundred and Forty-five Feet Long Now in Position—How the Work Was Done.

The sinking of the last section of the tunnel under the Harlem River near 125th street was successfully accomplished to-day. The method of constructing and sinking was an innovation in tunnel work, and the credit of the achievement belongs to D. D. McBean, of the firm of McCallen & McBean.

Heretofore the method pursued in tunnel work under rivers has been the usual one of boring underneath and constructing beneath the water. Mr. McBean's scheme was to build a tunnel on dry land and then sink it in place and finish it afterward.

The hour set for sinking the tunnel was 8 A. M., as at that hour the tide was at its lowest ebb and less time would be consumed in sinking it, but although the workmen were on hand it was not until 5.20 o'clock that the sinking process actually began. At 7 o'clock the top of the tunnel was even with the surface of the water, and at noon it rested on the bottom.

Six Weeks to Finish Work. It will take about six weeks to finish the work, as there are yet about 800 feet of the subway to be constructed.

The section sunk to-day was the middle span. The other two sections on either side have been already finished by the usual old methods.

The entire tunnel, with the sunken section of to-day included, is a twin tube, east-iron tunnel about 440 feet long.

The first half of the tunnel, from the shore to the middle of the river, was built under pneumatic pressure in a caisson. Underneath the roof of this caisson the excavation was completed, the cast-iron shell was assembled and the concrete was placed.

When Mr. McBean decided on his new plan he immediately set about carrying it into execution. He caused a temporary pile-dock to be constructed from the shore to the completed half of the tunnel, including a space thirty-nine feet wide and three hundred feet long, including the tunnel.

Permanent Foundation Piles. Rows of permanent foundation piles were driven here as required, and these supported horizontal submerged timber frame, which served as guides for the accurate alignment of the sheet piles of the sidewalks.

After the piles had been braced and cut off under water a pontoon 55 feet wide, 105 feet long and 12 feet deep was built over the centre line of the tunnel at the shore, between the construction dock. On the floor of this pontoon were laid transverse timbers eight feet apart, and on them were laid a row of longitudinal timbers. Between these the plank flooring was spiked to the underlying transverse timbers.

Access was provided to the interior by arranging segments of the shell-plate so that they could be unbolted and removed. Exterior concrete was then filled over the shell, virtually completing the upper half of the tunnel. Work of finishing the lower half of the tunnel will be done after the connections have been made with the tunnel proper pumped dry. The tunnel now, of course, is filled with water, which will be pumped out after connections are made at either end of the section sunken to-day.

CHAMPION TRAVIS SAILS FOR HOME

Pleased at Result of Trip, but Doesn't Know Whether or Not He'll Defend His English Golf Title Next Year.

LONDON, June 15.—Before leaving England for the United States to-day in the steamship Oceanic, Walter J. Travis, the American golf champion, said to a representative of the Associated Press:

"I am naturally pleased at the result of my trip. I did not expect to win the championship, especially as I was in very bad form prior to the contest. I have not yet made up my mind whether to come over next year and endeavor to retain the title. Some of the younger men ought to have a chance. I would like to see some of our leading professionals enter the open English championships."

NEW EMISSARY TO RAISULI.

Relative of Hand-Carried Captives Terms for Release of Captives. PARIS, June 15.—The French Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Delcasse, has designated in the place of the son of Mohammed El Ferres, the representative of the Sultan, to carry on the negotiations for the release of Messrs. Perdlaris and Varley.

In Happy Insurance. (From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.) "I thought you sold all your friends and deserted you since you lost your money." "They have." "But I see a gray-whiskered man who comes here every day. Who is he?" "That's the doctor. He hasn't heard of my loss."

FAIR WOMEN SLEUTHS IN THE TENDERLOIN

Capt. Cottrell Introduces an Innovation, and There Is Considerable Mystery as to Why He Is Using This New Class of Detectives.

Should you see well-gowned young women of athletic build walking through Broadway, flitting about cafes, going in and out of theatres during the night, and taking apparently great interest in shopping during the day, you had better look at them more than once.

You had better take note of them, for these young women are likely to make names for themselves in the Police Department. They have the power to arrest you if your conduct is not what it should be, and underneath these close-fitting waists there are the shields of detectives.

Almost no one outside of Police Captain Cottrell and his superiors at Police Headquarters have known that these young women were doing detective work, and the nature of the evidence they are seeking is kept secret, but that they are seeking evidence is apparent.

No results from the work of the good-looking, active young sleuths has yet appeared on the blotter of the West Thirtieth street police station. It has been suggested that they are employed to secure evidence against certain men who have been collecting graft from women, but this is not known to be a fact.

Cottrell Is Not Blamed.

For some time past there has been dissatisfaction at Headquarters with certain work in the Tenderloin, and the fact that Capt. Cottrell has been taken into the confidence of his chief in the employment of the women, shows that he is not held responsible, and that he is trying to uproot the evil.

Simpson Crawford Co.

SIXTH AVE. 19TH TO 20TH STREETS

To that mammoth shirt-waist sale we add 1,000 special exclusive style waists at $1.00.

IT'S the best shirt-waist news of the Summer—far in advance of that of two weeks ago—better even than Sunday's—for to-morrow in addition to thousands of dainty warm weather creations in white we'll have ready for smart dressers 1,000 of the Simpson Crawford Co. special at $1.00—charming and exclusive styles not shown by any other store in America. The material is the kind put in waists sold as bargains at $1.50, so this is a remarkable value at $1.

$1.00 It's a cool, becoming conceit of Persian lawn, entire yoke of graduated pin tucks to form yoke, embroidered down front, plaiting on shoulder, fancy stock, tucked cuffs, sleeves and back, full blouse; a style approved by critical authorities on the latest modes; you'll say it's prettier and daintier than any waist shown elsewhere at $1.50.

That's only one-fifth of the good news, for here are four additional bargains that created such a great stir in our waist department during the first three days of this week, and it's sure to be repeated to-morrow, as the diversity of styles and sizes was so colossal that it is yet unbroken.

$1.50 for $3 white lawn waists — $2 for $4 white lawn waists — $2.35 for $5 white materials trimmed with embroidery or lace. $3 for $6 white waists of all-over English embroidery, others trimmed with lace or embroidery.

Five thousand dainty corset covers 29c.

June sale of muslin underwear.

NEARLY every smart Summer girl desires from two to four of these daintily trimmed fine cambric corset covers at 29c. because they're so desirable to wear with the stunning new shirt waists or shirt waist suits. This June sale at 29c. is already the talk of all New York. Here's a lot of 5,000 for to-morrow that will make this the most active undermuslin department in New York.

29c. for 40c. corset covers and drawers.

The feature that's most interesting is that not a cover in this gathering sells regularly anywhere for less than 40c.—French shape—low round neck trimmed with lace—also 40c. cambric drawers at 29c.—full lawn ruffle—finished with cluster tucks—hemstitched hem—all full sizes.

We've a good reason for being able to sell high quality muslin wear at these extraordinarily low prices—bought several thousand yards of material, a manufacturer's surplus—and had these garments made up to our order for our June sale.

29c. for 40c. drawers and corset covers of fine cambric—covers French shape, low round neck trimmed with lace—drawers have full lawn ruffle finished with cluster tucks and hemstitched hem—all full sizes.

79c. for $1 gowns & drawers of fine cambric and muslin, trimmed with embroidery & lace.

98c. for $1.25 gowns, petticoats, corset covers & drawers of fine cambric and nainsook, all trimmed with fine embroidery and lace.

$1.39 for $2 gowns of fine nainsook; several good styles to choose from, high and low neck effects, long and short sleeves, all trimmed with fine embroidery, lace and ribbon.

$1.50 for petticoats and gowns of fine cambric and nainsook, trimmed with fine embroidery and lace.

79c. for $1 petticoats in wash gingham, stripe effects, finished with ruffles, several good styles to select from—all full sizes.

98c. for $1.50 petticoats in the best quality Eate's gingham, stripe, plain and check effects, full ruffle, all full size—lengths 36 to 42 inches.

Clearing our immense gathering of women's fashionable oxfords at 2.60.

THERE hasn't been a dull moment in Simpson Crawford Co.'s shoe department since this sensational June clearing of our entire stock of $5 bench-made oxfords at $2.60 was made about ten days ago. The end isn't in sight yet. For to-morrow we've added a thousand pairs of fashionable Summer oxfords, which we sell regularly at $3.50 to $5, at that same popular price of $2.60.

The best advertisement we've had for this sale has been the style and high quality of the oxfords, so much in demand this season. The thousands of economical smart dressers have told others, who have come to share in the greatest saving of the season.
